Group Stages March to Protest Intimidation of Negro Voters

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Members of a group called the "Concerned White Citizens of Alabama" converged on Selma today for a march protesting what they described as intimidation of Negro voter applicants.

The group planned an afternoon procession to the Dallas County courthouse. The leader is the Rev. Joseph Ellwanger, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Birmingham and a former resident of Selma.

Rev. Ellwanger said it was a spontaneous movement with members coming mainly from Birmingham, Huntsville, Tuscaloosa, Auburn and Montgomery.

Its purpose he said, is to show

"there are good, respectable white people in Alabama who really are very much concerned with the injustices here in Alabama."

Newsman Assaulted

At Marion, two white men pleaded guilty to charges of assaulting newsman during an outbreak of violence two weeks ago. Both were fined.

Mayor R. L. Pegues, who also serves as city judge, fined lumber salesman Sam Dozier $78.75 and service station operator Woodfin Nichols $53.75. Dozier was charged with hitting Richard Valeriani, NBC correspondent from Washington, on the head with a club. Several stitches were required to close the wound.

Nichols was charged with hitting Pete Fisher of New Orleans with his fist. Fisher is a United Press International photographer.

The case of Redge Bearden, an insurance salesman, was postponed until next week. He is free under $100 bond on charges of defacing property by spraying paint on photographers' camera lenses.

50-Mile March
Meanwhile, Negro civil rights leaders stepped up recruiting and organization work for an announced 50-mile march from Selma along busy U.S. 80 to Montgomery.

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., said King will return to Selma Sunday afternoon to lead the start of the march to Montgomery, capital of the Confederacy a century ago.

King said the march is to dramatize Negro demands for more liberal voter registration laws.

The goal, he said, is to have 500 to 800 Negroes in the line of march, which will continue three to four days.

Saigon Filled With Rumors of Coup and Riots

Mock Bombing Runs Over City; Police Placed on Full Alert

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Mock bombing runs over Saigon by air force sky-raidiers stirred rumors of a coup today and bolstered reports of possible anti-American demonstrations during the weekend.

Saigon police had gone on full alert after receiving reports that some neutralist groups would stage demonstrations. None had developed by evening.

Some officials felt air force pilots may have spotted a force of Marines detailed to a downtown park in case of a demonstration and sounded a coup alarm.

One high ranking source said, "I think we'll all be able to sleep in peace tonight. But it seems there might be some young army colonels and other officers around who might be kicking up their heels. They've been making unhappy noises about the generals not yet being back with the troops."

"Brass in" Capital
Vietnamese military brass have been concentrated in the capital since the ouster of Lt. Gen. Nguyen Khanh Feb. 21.

The quickened pace of battle in the area around Da Nang Air Base about 380 miles north of here showed no let up, as the Viet Cong ambushed a government armored patrol Friday night and killed the commander of the Vietnamese army's first regiment.

The Caboose and Two Box cars of a Soo Line train overturned on an embankment late Friday night after 14 cars jumped the track. The derailment occurred shortly before midnight Friday near Sherwood in Cal-

Expanding Vietnamese War Blamed

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials look for increasing difficulties in relations with Russia as world tensions continue to build over the expanding war in South Viet Nam.

The Soviet government may move away, at least temporarily, from its declared policy of peaceful coexistence with the West, U.S. officials believe.

Some bridging over the quarrel between Russia and Red China is also considered possible since both Communist powers are backing North Viet Nam in its fight with the United States and South Viet Nam.

The prospect of worsened U.S.-Soviet relations is a source of concern here. It already has caused the shelving of plans for an exchange of top-level visits later this year.

Hard Issues
But Washington authorities say they see no way of avoiding the hard issues of the Vietnamese struggle until and unless a peaceful settlement becomes possible.

No such settlement is in sight now. The outlook rather, is said to be for more U.S. air strikes against targets in North Viet Nam.

The United States is following a strategy of bombing military bases in the north in an attempt to persuade the Hanoi regime that unless it stops sending troops and arms into the south it runs an increasingly dangerous risk of massive destruction.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk briefed Latin American ambassadors Friday on Viet Nam at a 50-minute session at the State Department. He is reportedly to have told them emphatically that the United States intends to pursue its present policy of defending South Viet Nam until North Viet Nam agrees to halt aggression.

Peace-Seeking
He also is reported to have told them that in spite of the peace-seeking efforts of a number of countries, including Britain, France, Russia and India, the North Vietnamese have so far given no indication whatever that they are ready for negotiations on terms acceptable to the West.

U.S. officials say they will not at this point set conditions for negotiations or specify the elements they would like to have in a final settlement. But qualified officials do say any such settlement should provide for the withdrawal of hard-core Communist guerrilla forces that infiltrated the south from North Viet Nam.

The United States began periodic air strikes on infiltration bases in North Viet Nam a month ago. These, and the one earlier this week, brought not only Soviet denunciations and protests but also massive demonstrations by thousands of students at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow. Thursday, students over-ran police lines and hurled

Jury Must Decide on Life Sentence Or Death for Pregnant Mother of 4

Mrs. Lucille Miller, 35, Found Guilty of Murdering Spouse in Dramatic Court Scene

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Mrs. Lucille Miller, 35, five months pregnant with her fourth child, awaits a jury's verdict on the penalty she must face for the murder of her husband: Life imprisonment or death — by accidental fire or death.

A jury ruled Friday that she was guilty of first degree murder for the death in a blazing into the crowded court, and the verdict was read: Guilty as charged.

"Oh My God!"
In the moment's hush Mrs. Miller gasped, "Oh, my God!"

Then uproar, Swopt the little 63-year-old.

"She's not guilty!" screamed Sandy Slagle, 22, a blonde medical student who lived in the Miller home.

Cried Debbie Miller, 14, eldest of the widow's three children, with tears streaming down her cheeks:

"She didn't do it! She didn't do it!"

The judge ordered bailiffs to take them from the court. Mrs. Miller's attorney, Edward P. Foley, put his arm around her as they stood, facing the judge. From the hallway came Debbie's scream:

"I'll never see my mother again!"

Death Punishment
Mrs. Miller, tears in her eyes, turned toward her daughter. "Don't," she said, "don't."

The judge ordered the four jurors — eight women and two men — to return Tuesday to decide Mrs. Miller's penalty. In California a separate hearing determines punishment in capital crimes. Authorities said the death penalty can be given a pregnant woman but not carried out until after birth of the child.

Mrs. Miller, her black hair piled in a high beehive and wearing a brown maternity smock, was hurried from the court back to her jail cell. A cordon of bailiffs stood between the jurors and the public.

Miss Slagle lunged toward them, screaming:

"You murderers! You murderers! You know she didn't do it! I hope you can live with your consciences."

She broke into sobs. A friend

Egypt Claims German Pair Did Espionage

Intelligence Says Couple Staged Wild Parties and Orgies

CAIRO (AP) — An Egyptian intelligence spokesman claims a West German couple held here on espionage charges staged wild parties and orgies to obtain military, political and economic information for Israel.

The spokesman brought up the case of Johann Sigurd Lotz and his wife Waldrud at a news conference Friday. He charged the couple spied for the Israelis for four years. Their trial will start in about 10 days, he said.

In the course of the news conference, the spokesman displayed photographs purporting to show Lotz demonstrating a clandestine radio transmitter in a bathroom.

"Campaign of Terror"
The spokesman said Lotz confessed to using the bombs secreted in fountain pens, explosives hidden in cakes of soap, and transmitters built into the heel of a riding boot while spying on Egyptian military activities and conducting a campaign of terror against West German scientists working on Egyptian scientific projects.

Lotz was a horse breeder in Cairo.

The spokesman said Lotz was hired in West Berlin in 1960 by an Israeli agent named Elie Gordon. Another Israeli agent identified as Rubi Bernstein was placed in charge of Lotz, the spokesman said. The spokesman also identified the alleged head of the Israeli intelligence organization as "Joseph."

Lotz underwent extensive training in Paris and Munich, the spokesman said, in the use of wireless equipment, invisible ink and time bombs, coding, photography, concealment of documents and use of small arms.

Electronic Information Service

May Help House Democrats Win in '66

BY CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats have set up a personalized electronic information service to help their lopsided congressional majority weather the 1966 off-year election.

Getting special attention are the 71 freshmen members of the House. Most of them are from closely divided or normally Republican districts and they are likely to be the chief targets of the GOP.

Johnson Recordings
Using a relatively small staff and a few telephones and tape recorders, the Democratic National Committee has left the Republicans far behind in political communications.

The Democrats can get comments from representatives and senators into the hands of radio and television stations in their districts almost simultaneously with the passage of legislation or the announcement of government contracts.

Recordings of comments by President Johnson and other top administration officials are available daily.

In contrast, the Republican National Committee has just started a weekly five-minute broadcast, available thus far only through state and county GOP chairmen. The GOP has no service at all to compare with Democratic efforts on behalf of individual congressmen.

Dictating the Democratic drive is the history of midterm elections.

In 1938, two years after President Franklin D. Roosevelt's landslide victory, the Democrats dropped 75 House seats. Other midterm declines have been less severe, but 1934 is the only time in the last half century that the party in power gained.

45 Vulnerable
Of the 235 Democrats in the House — there are 140 Republicans — 45 may be especially vulnerable in 1966, running, as they will have to, without the benefit of Johnson's coattails.

To keep the congressmen in touch with their districts, the radio and television scripts and material for newsletters, transmits statements by teletype to newspapers and distributes recorded events to radio and television stations.

Democratic committee supplies

Five contact men at party headquarters have been assigned specifically to the 71 House freshmen to give them ideas and show them what services are available. One of them, John Meek, said his main job is "to save them a lot of time."

The biggest innovation is the actuality service, directed by Jerry Huard, the National Committee's radio-television chief.

Calls Headquarters
"People have been sending stuff to radio stations from mimeograph machines," Huard said. "That's of no use to them at all."

A congressman need only call the National Committee and have his statement taken over the telephone. Huard, or one of his two assistants, then calls the radio and television stations in the district, offering the recorded statement.

Huard says the service has been useful especially to congressmen from sprawling, rural districts.

"What better way has he got of reaching his constituency?" he asked.

Terrors Whip Kaukauna, 79-57; Rockets Pull Off 71-70 Upset Over Favored Oshkosh Quintet

BY TERRY GALVIN

OSHKOSH—A scrappy, inspired band of underdog Neenah High School Rockets stole the thunder from Appleton's 79-57 victory over Kaukauna with a spine-tingling 71-70 upset win over a much taller Oshkosh Indian Unit here Friday night in the opening round of the WIAA Regional Basketball Tournament.

The state's fourth-ranked Terrors and Neenah vie at 8:30 tonight for the Regional championship and a berth in Tuesday's sub-sectional at Neenah. Kaukauna and Oshkosh square-off in the consolation game at 7 p.m. today.

Appleton, now 17-2 for the season, decided the Rockets on the Neenah floor, 65-52, early in the season.

Neenah Coach Ole Jorgensen, who announced his retirement a short time ago after 39 years at the Rocket helm, summed up one of the season's biggest upsets in just three words.

"It's tournament time," said the calm, cool and collected veteran after watching his Neenah varsity for the 766th time in his 39 seasons. Jorgensen, who's Rocket squads are now 509-257, continued, "Anything can happen."

A typical remark from one of the most unnerfed mentors basketball has ever seen.

Actually, it was an all-out performance by Neenah forward Mike Boyd with big assists from seven other Rockets. Boyd and Oshkosh captain Mike Malone hooked up in a heated scoring duel at the opening buzzer. Though the Neenah All-Mid-Eastern Conference selectee was outscored, 28-27, by 5-9 Malone, it was Boyd's "quarter-backing" that pulled the Rockets through late in the game.

Appleton, meanwhile, struggled to a 32-26 halftime advantage on the strength of 16 of 32 field goal attempts. The Terrors failed to score from the charity stripe in five tries during the first 16 minutes.

Kaukauna, meshing 12 of 15 free throws in the opening half, kept within striking distance of the Dick Emanuel-coached Terrors until Bob Ness dropped a 20-foot jumper from the side with 1:31 to play in the third quarter for a 46-41 AHS lead.

KIMBERLY — New London last frame with a fielder, the North's Blue Devils, who chased Monroe in vain for the top ranking in the AP poll throughout the season, and Wauwatosa East advanced to a showdown Friday night as the state's ranked teams moved through another round of WIAA tournament play.

Playing on their home court, Monroe's Cheesemakers broke through Dodgeville's slow, deliberate style, popularized by Coach Wennie Wilson, and defeated the Dodgers 47-20 in extending their record to 19-0 in a Sub-Regional windup.

New Londoners hooped five of their first six and eight of their first 11 attempts. However, in watoosa East, rated No. 3, tuned down for their duel with victories on the Wauwatosa court in Regional semifinals.

The game was played on a neutral Carleton College court and left the Vikings with 7-10 to dec. Eric Fisher (Brillion), 3-1.

The win was vital to St. Olaf's title hopes, since the Oles were scheduled to tangle with first place Ripon this afternoon in the league finale. A St. Olaf win would create a first place tie between the Redmen and the Oles.

St. Olaf got off to a fast start against the Vikings, converting 8 of its first 9 shots into 16-6 lead after five minutes of play. This lead was maintained steadily throughout the half. St. Olaf held a 39-30 advantage at the intermission.

Streak to Lead

The second half proved disastrous for the Vikings. At one juncture the Oles made six baskets and a free throw, compared to just one free throw by Lawrence, to streak to a 62-42 lead with 11 minutes to play. At about this time two Viking starters, Dick Schultz and Gordon Bond, fouled out and St. Olaf coasted to victory.

Lawrence was plagued by poor shooting. The only bright spot in the Viking attack was the play of senior Earl Hoover. Hoover paced the scoring with 14 points and was sharp on the boards. Junior Tom Steinmetz chipped in with 11 points.

St. Olaf utilized 12 players, four of whom scored in double figures. Eric Grimsrud took game honors with 17, while teammate Charles Grover, a second string forward, added 15.

AHS, Neenah Quintets to Meet Tonight

and a 52-43 spread at period's end.

AHS walked away from Coach Ken Vander Velden's Ghosts with six of nine from the floor and 15 of 16 gift shots in the final eight minutes for the 79-57 verdict.

Ness led the Terror attack with 20 markers, including nine of 18 floor shots. Bruce (Moose) Miller, Neil Weber and John Mumme added 10 apiece. Junior Gary Riemer led Kaukauna with 15 points. Wayne Steinbach and Don Bixel chimed in with 14 and 13, respectively.

AHS reserves Dennis DeCock (six points) and Tom Jooss (eight) turned in tremendous offensive and defensive performances when Miller and Mumme encountered foul trouble.

Without Andrews

The Ghosts played without Mike Andrews, an All-M-E pick. The man-to-man AHS defense, thus, was able to concentrate on 6-3 Steinbach, limiting the big center to just five shots from the field (four found the range).

Appleton finished with 29 of 57 from the field for a net-scorching 50.9 per cent. Kaukauna coined 18 of 45 for an even 40 per cent. AHS split the cords on 21 of 23 free throw tries in the second half.

Individually, Terrors over the 50 per cent mark from the field were Miller (4-of-7), Jooss (3-of-4), Mumme (4-of-7), DeCock (2-of-4) and Ron Brinkman (1-of-1).

Though Oshkosh carried a 2-inch per man height advantage, the numbers were all in favor of the underdog Rockets. Neenah's season record at tip-off time was seven wins and 11 losses. Yes, 7-come-11. The Rockets had nothing to lose and a berth in the Regional final opposite the Terrors to gain. Oshkosh, a third place finisher in the tough Valley Conference, is now 12-7 for the year.

Oshkosh's Malone opened by missing his first shot from the floor, but then proceeded to literally burn up the net with eight straight baskets in a like number of tries from all over the floor. Despite Malone's individual heroics, Oshkosh, after the masterful surge, had a meager 21-19 lead with 7:33 to play in the second canto.

Smestad Hits

A nip-and-tuck battle ensued, throughout the remainder of the second frame until, with two seconds left to intermission, Neenah went ahead, 40-39, on a turn-around jumper from the lane by Jim Smestad, his only basket of the night. Neenah never trailed thereafter.

Adding insult to injury, Boyd intercepted the throw-in and with cat-like quickness rifled a shot from 35-feet out that split the strings perfectly. A minor discussion among the officials followed before the men in striped shirts ruled Boyd's flier into the books and Neenah retired to mid-game briefing with a 42-39 lead.

Oshkosh, on a long set by Bruce Erickson, pulled within a point at the 4:57 mark of the third period, but the Rockets promptly countered with seven straight points (four by Boyd, of course) and a 54-46 lead with 3:24 to play in the third segment.

Oshkosh battled back to within a pair twice (65-63 and 67-65), but the scrappy Rockets always had the answer. Boyd's pair of gift shots with 1:06 remaining in the game proved, once again, to be the margin of victory as Neenah led, 71-67.

Panic-Filled Minute

The panic-filled final minute of action saw a Rich Fuhs gift shot slice the count to 71-68 with 52 seconds left. An intentional foul on Oshkosh gave Neenah's Smestad a pair of tosses, but the 6-0 junior failed to convert. Malone pulled the Indians within a point with 11 seconds left in the game on a 30-foot jump shot.

Neenah, hoping to stall out the waning seconds, tossed the ball in play, only to have the Rocket receiver step on the out-of-bounds line, giving Oshkosh possession in its own forecourt with four seconds on the clock. An Indian time-out followed, but Gary Scheuermann's vain attempt at the buzzer sounded off the rim as the horn bounded one of the more remarkable upsets of the year.

Malone, after his opening eight of nine hot streak, finished with 11 of 27 from the field and six of seven free throws for 28 points. Boyd netted 11 of 18 shots for a very commendable 57.9 per cent. However, the usually accurate Rocket ace, converted only five of 13 from the line for his 27-point total.

Neenah posted a 42.9 per cent age on 27 of 63, while Oshkosh, controlling the rebounds, 49-35, hooped 27 of 67 for 40.3 per cent.

Does WBA Title Mean Anything?

CHICAGO (AP) — Ernie Terrell is the World Boxing Association's heavyweight champion today and whether the title means anything after his lustily point a round must system. Judge William Doty had it 70-67 time, now has a 47-6-2 record.

Terrell wants to fight the winner of the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston title fight, set for Boston May 25. The WBA, which dethroned Clay for signing for the return with Liston, wants 9-3-3.

But the towering Terrell, inch spread in reach, helped prompted by Manager Julie Isaacson, said he won't fight stantly married by holding and Patterson because "he never spinning. Both were on the deck from shoes, pushes and slips but there were no knockdowns and nothing close to one.

And sources close to Patterson said he's just going to wait on the Clay-Liston outcome, stabbed blind by Terrell's stinging hope that Clay will win again, in fast-firing left jabs to the

As for the fight, Joe Louis, the old champion who was brought to help the 6-foot-6, guitar-strumming Terrell polish up his season games, Cashton followed his 69-19 victory over De Soto in a Sub-regional semifinal by edging Hillsboro 46-44. Cashton took 30 to 45 seconds to set up each shot and averaged 11-47 73-58 trouncings by Hillsboro earlier this year.

DePere Quints Meet Tonight In Regional

Phantoms Defeat Seymour, 73-63; East Tips Trojans

SEYMOUR — The contingents from West DePere and East DePere advanced to the regional finals of WIAA tournament play by defeating their opponents in the regional semifinals here last night. West topped Seymour, 73-63, while East downed Green Bay South, 59-41.

West and East will battle it out here tonight to determine which will play in the sub-sectional at West DePere Tuesday.

West jumped off to an early lead and never relinquished it, although the Indians outscored them slightly in the final two quarters of play. The score at the half was 41 to 28, while the score in the second half was 35-32 in favor of Seymour.

Ron King set the scoring pace with 23 points for the losing cause, Vern Freeman, who was ejected from the game for an intentional foul in the fourth period, was the only other Indian to score in double figures, totaling 17. John Nichol paced the Phantoms with 19 points, followed by Steve Wilmet with 18 and Dennis Vanderveen with 17. Gaylord Anderson and Dwight Anderson rounded out the balanced scoring attack with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

East built up a 22-4 lead over the Trojans in the first quarter, then just coasted the rest of the way to victory, with the advantage at the end of the game the same as that at the end of the initial period.

Use Wire Frame Coat Hanger For a Colorful Pool Game

BY CAPPY DICK

A cane of many colors is fun to make out of empty thread spools and a wire coat hanger.

The first step is to straighten the coat hanger wire, then thread enough empty spools on it to fill it up. These spools should all be of the same size. Also, they should be painted.

Paint the spools.

Use as many colors of paint as you have left over from enameling jobs that have been done around your house in the past. The more colors you use, the brighter the cane will be.

Paint Dries

When the paint has dried, string the spools, alternating the colors to achieve the best possible effect.

With pliers, bend each end of the wire to keep the spools from sliding off. Then bend the wire to the shape shown in figures 1 and 2. The curved top end becomes the handle of the cane. The right angle bend in the other end forms the axle for one of the spools which will serve as a roller.

Figure 3 shows the cane being tried out by the boy who made it. He is checking its performance before giving it to a younger brother to use as a push-toy.

PSC Okays Change in Seymour Firm's Rates

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON -- Seymour Transfer Lines, Inc., of Seymour, has been authorized to adjust its passenger carrier routes in central Wisconsin. The Public Service Commission has announced.

The revised permit provides for service between Stevens Point, Wisconsin Rapids, Adams, Friendship and intermediate points, and also permits an alternate route between Wisconsin Rapids and Stevens Point at the option of the carrier. In another change, the commission authorized the company to use U.S. 10 between State 161 and Waupaca for operating convenience and reduction of travel time for passengers traveling from Green Bay to Stevens Point or La Crosse.

Electric Board Appointments Get Approval

Appleton Aldermen Confirm 3 Men as Wiring Examiners

The city council voted to beef up the board of electrical examiners by confirming three appointments by Mayor Clarence Mitchell.

Alderman also approved the reappointment of George G. Narovec, head of an Appleton architectural firm bearing his name, to a three-year term on the board of appeals.

Narovec, who lives at 16 River Drive, is the only board member whose term expires this year. The others are in 1966 and 1967.

Appointed to the board of electrical examiners to boost its size to seven members were:

Appointees
—Lester E. Asmus, 901 E. Frances St., superintendent of electrical service and shops for Wisconsin Michigan Power Co.

—Adrian T. Godschalk, 223 N. Green Bay Road, operator of a consulting electrical engineer's office, preparing electrical designs, plans and specifications for public buildings and industrial plants.

Clyde Stephenson, 1125 E. Melrose Ave., owner of an electrical company bearing his name and formed in 1952.

Under the city's recodified ordinances, the size of the board was increased to include a contractor, electrical engineer and utility representative.

The appointments are effective June 1. Board members serve without pay.

Skiing Conditions Are as Mixed As State Weather

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The weekend skiing situation in Wisconsin appeared today to be as mixed up as the state's weather. Considerable amounts of snow were still on the ground in many areas, as rain, drizzle and more snow fell today.

Assessment Is Valid, Says City Attorney

Chester Laux Decides to Pay Appleton Levy Rather Than Enter Litigation

The $9,606 special assessment became involved in a controversy and litigation with the city. The Laux property was considered at one time as the site for a department store Arian's, Inc. of New York was planning for this area.

Laux, contending that he was given a commercial rate assessment for Ballard Road when part of his property was still zoned for residential, originally sought a rebate of about $5,000. The city's position was expressed in a legal opinion Froehlich presented to the board of public works.

At the same time, Atty. Don Jury, who represents Laux, said his client decided to pay the entire assessment rather than

LIGHT AND LUXURIOUS

We are fast reaching the point, decoratively speaking, where we defy attempted fashion dictatorship, and disregard the do's and don'ts of old, outmoded rules and doctrines. We are determined to give our homes personality and character, and to this end we combine furnishings, art, and accessories from all periods, many centuries, and various cultures.

This does not mean that we produce a hodge podge or a busy atmosphere, but a carefully calculated effect that fulfills our individual aesthetic tastes and living requirements.

The dining room sketched above which is really on the small side has been given a clean, precise, almost pristine feeling by using offwhite as the dominant color. The white of the walls and draperies however, has been relieved by painting the valance board which continues around two sides of the room a delicate aquamarine blue. The table base and the chairs have an antique-white patina-rich finish. Natural walnut table ties in with the two-toned walnut and teak wall chest. Aquamarine blue appears again on the textured fabric of the chair seats, and in the deep-pile wall-to-wall carpeting. Room's only accessories are the sculptured figure on the wall chest and the luxuriant plant.

Do you like color schemes that are composed of low contrast shades? Or do you prefer sharp, opposing colors? Our interior designers will be most happy to help you plan rooms that will fulfill your individual requirements. Come in soon.

Poet to Read His Works At Lawrence

William Meredith, Awards Nominee, to Appear Wednesday

William Meredith, poet, and member of the English department of Connecticut College, will offer readings from his own works in a public program at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 10, in the Riverview Lounge at the Lawrence University Memorial Union.

Meredith, a Princeton University graduate, has held several important teaching posts, and is the author of a widely published book, "The Wreck of the Thresher," published by Knopf. It is one of eight contenders for this year's national Book Awards. Announcement of the winners is to be made on Tuesday.

The poet began writing verse in 1940 after college graduation while working as a copy-boy on the New York Times. During the war years he was first an Army Air Corps pilot, and then a Naval aviator. His "Love Letter from an Impossible Land," the title poem of his first book of verse, was written while he served in the Aleutian Islands. The book was chosen in 1944 by Archibald MacLeish for the Yale Series of Younger Poets.

Pilot in War

After the war Meredith taught at Princeton, and studied and wrote verse under Woodrow Wilson and Rockefeller fellowships. He was recalled to military duty as a carrier pilot during the Korean action.

He has held teaching posts at the University of Hawaii and the Bread Loaf School of English of Middlebury College, and has been writer-in-residence at the University of Wisconsin.

In 1960 he was accredited to the New York City and Metropolitan Opera companies by a grant from the Ford Foundation, and together with Robert Lowell studied the opera there. He has won three of Poetry Magazine's annual prizes, and a grant from the National Academy of Arts and Letters. He is a chancellor of the Academy of American Poets.

The poet's writings show the influence of his naval experiences. Besides those already mentioned they include "Ships and Other Figures," his second book of verse, published by Princeton, 1948; and "The Open Sea," his third, by Knopf, 1958. He edited the Dell Laurel Edition of Shelley in 1962, and translated "Alcools" by the French poet, Guillaume Apollinaire, for publication by Doubleday in 1964.

Meridith, as nominee for the book award, is pitted against two other poets who have read here recently—Galway Kinnell, in 1963, and James Dickey, in 1964.

His appearance is arranged under Lawrence English department auspices. Dr. Elizabeth Tusten Forter, Edwards-Alexander professor of English, is in charge of the program.

Appleton Asked To Annex Old Port

County Board Approves City's Earlier Request for 180-Acre Site

Outagamie County Friday petitioned the City of Appleton to annex the old county airport.

They cited the 180 acres could then be zoned properly, an action which would increase the sale value of the property.

At its Feb. 9 meeting, the county board adopted a resolution calling for annexation of the 180 acres.

The petition, received at the city clerk's office, was signed by Alvin Fulcer, Kumberly, county board chairman, and Mollie E. Pfeffer, county clerk.

Plan Commission Mayor Clarence Mitchell indicated the petition would be formally received at the next council meeting and referred to the plan commission and other appropriate municipal bodies.

When the county board first announced its intention of selling the old airport property, city officials and regional planners asked that the land be annexed to Appleton first.

They cited the 180 acres could then be zoned properly, an action which would increase the sale value of the property.

General feeling is the city and county will both benefit from having the land taken into the city and zoned first before it is sold off, either in part or whole.

Future Development While Appleton has had few major annexations in the past two years, it suddenly finds itself on the verge of taking in a considerable amount of property for future development.

Recently, the city council purchased 95 acres of land in the Town of Grand Chute for park and other purposes. Action has been started to annex the land to the city, plus other tracts south of Appleton earmarked for future public school sites.

Knowles Asks 'Firm' Commitment

MADISON — Gov. Warren P. Knowles has demanded that the Wisconsin Exposition Board make its own "firm" recommendations on the continuation of State Fair Park at Milwaukee or the abandonment of that site in favor of a better location elsewhere.

With other members of the state building commission, the governor rejected the request of the state exposition board for money to hire another survey of the feasibility of the present location in West Allis for the long range purposes of the exposition board.

The board asked for $10,000 to hire consultants for the purpose. Several years ago it spent $17,500 for a similar survey, which exposition board members said did not provide sufficient detail to make a reliable judgment.

Earlier Study The earlier study concluded that to remove the state fair and associated activities to a new exposition site would probably cost from $15 million to $20 million, officials said. The 1953 legislature authorized the formation of a building corporation to arrange financing for such an enterprise, but no action has yet been taken.

Knowles declared that another study is not needed, and suggested that the exposition board members return within 60 days with their own analysis and an explicit proposal on their own authority.

Herbert Velzer and other members of the board protested to the governor that they are not "indecisive", but that they want to use the utmost care in making a decision "that is best for the state."

Twelve out-of-state vehicles were checked, eight doors or windows found open, and eight five-day tickets issued. Twelve warnings were issued because of dogs or cats and one animal was killed. One case of larceny reported was cleared, 10 minor boys were referred to the welfare department, one person was posed ing, and one each for failure to obey a policeman's signal, hit and run with property damage to an attended vehicle, hit and run of unattended vehicle, driving after revocation, and allowing an unauthorized person to drive.

Six fire calls were received last month, two in the city and four in rural areas. Six blood delivered.

'Cargo Cult' a Materialistic Faith Flares Up in Southwest Pacific Isles

BY GEORGE W. CORNELL

Sometimes religion is recommended as the means of getting something — confidence, inner security, and even rewards of career advancement and greater earnings.

But when religion is based on motives of this kind, theologians point out, it becomes idolatry — a worship of success and self-interest, rather than of God and His purposes.

Oddly enough, although such distortions of faith occur subtly in a modern, educated society, a more simple, dramatic counterpart has flared lately on islands of the Southwest Pacific.

Generally, it is called the "Cargo Cult."

Traces of Both

Containing the traces both of paganism and twisted Christianity, it is a highly materialistic belief, which stresses the acquisition of earthly goods as the means of powers, prestige and paradise.

Christian teachers serving in the area have increased efforts to curb its upsurge — in New Guinea, the Solomons, New Caledonia, Fiji and New Hebrides.

Recently the Evangelical Lutheran Church of New Guinea, at its biennial synod meeting, appealed to its 325 congregations to adopt a special "declaration of faith," repudiating the cult.

Members were urged to pray: "May the Lord Christ help me to be strong and to put down the confused thinking about obtaining wealth."

Planted Germ

Curiously, it was the coming of white Europeans to the Pacific islands that planted the germ of the idea for the "Cargo Cult" among the natives.

As they observed the incoming cargoes of modern machinery and devices which they had never seen before or even imagined — they developed the notion that their own "miracle ships" would come in someday.

All the wonderful things aboard — the shining lights, speeding vehicles, singing radios, the bounties of stored food and those awesome flying craft — would somehow provide heavenly salvation.

The products "were so surprisingly different from anything the natives had ever seen that they ascribed the creation of them to a spiritual world."

writes Italian scholar Vittorio Lanternari in a new book, "The Religions of the Oppressed" (Mentor).

The fact that white men had charge of the cargoes combined with other impressions to link an outpouring of material riches with the return to life of the dead.

Ghosts were white; the color white was associated with death; in Melanesia, widows painted their faces clay-white

Howard Joseph, an airline pilot, has found another use for his ability through his faith. His off duty hours are spent teaching prospective missionaries to fly and to maintain aircraft.

Living with his wife and four children at Lake MacGregor, N. Y., near the Maryknoll Seminary, he heard of the seminary's flight program and volunteered his services. With the help of a seminarian, Terence Cadogan, who has a flight instructor rating, he has made it possible for eight Maryknoll students to earn their pilots license in the past year. Eleven others are ready to solo. Twenty-five more seminarians are on the waiting list.

Now the seminarians own two small aircraft which are kept at a local airfield. Joseph sees to it that they are in top flight condition.

When Howard Joseph, who is an active Methodist, was asked his concept of his faith, he replied, "Believing in one another and doing for one another."

Family Has Faith American Missionary Ringed by Viet Cong

KHE SAHN, South Viet Nam, the Millers would probably have to depend on Capt. Charles A. Allen, 34, of Fort Lee, N.J., and his 14-man Special Forces team. Allen's camp is two miles from Khe Sahn by deeply rutted road.

Proud of Friends

The Millers are proud of their many friends among the Brou. However, Allen says that one of the tribesmen the Millers considered a good friend was killed as a Viet Cong terrorist.

Miller and his wife are part of the Wycliffe Bible Translators, a nonsectarian organization based in Santa Ana, Calif.

Scientific study of the Brou language and devising an alphabet and written language for the tribesmen, who are a dozen or more centuries behind the Vietnamese lowlanders; and Teaching the Brou to read and write their own language so they will have a bridge to enable them to learn the Vietnamese national language.

Arduous Job

The job has been arduous — Brou has 41 vowel sounds as opposed to the basic nine of English.

The Millers live just off Route 9 in a hut on stilts. Food comes solely from the local market.

There is some conventional furniture inside the one-room structure. A sheet decorated with printed pictures forms a partition between the living and sleeping quarters.

The living room floor usually is littered with Marjorie's toys and those of her 8-month-old brother, Gordon.

One of Marjorie's favorites is a jointed, plastic dragon. The ones that most fascinate the natives, young and old, are Marjorie's life-like dolls. They consider the dolls to be little people.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Hello, Gals:

Here's a discovery straight them from my kitchen:

I have covered some instant friends part of a pack of the coffee jars with adhesive-backed tags, and they use them when paper and it didn't fit perfectly they are writing to me. Now we smooth.

The other day one jar was almost empty so I poured hot water into it (you know ... to save the last drop!) and when I poured the coffee out, I was amazed to see how smoothly the plastic paper adhered to the jar. Just take your hands and smooth over the little places that need it. It will form like a kid glove.

Evidently the heat from the boiling water softens the adhesive backing and allows it to stretch.

From now on when I cover a jar, coffee can, bottle, etc., I am going to cover it, then fill it with hot water and let it stand for a few minutes before pouring out the water.

Be sure to cover it first, then pour in the water or it will be too-hot-to-handle.

Everyone is buying the small name and address tags that are so easy to paste on the corner of your envelope ... but I think

Reconsider Before You Try Double

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The average player likes nothing better than to double vociferously when he is loaded with trumps. The expert passes quietly because he knows that even six trumps may not be enough to defeat a declarer who knows what he is about.

When his hand was played in the 1964 Team Trials the Montreal expert Ray Jotcham carefully kept quiet with his six trumps in the East position. It didn't help him, for Kelsey Petterson made four spades on the South cards without even breathing hard.

West opened the king of diamonds, and dummy's ace won. Declarer led a trump to the ace and stopped to pick his jaw up from the floor when West discarded a diamond.

After some rueful thought, Petterson ran the clubs, discarding a heart on dummy's last club. Business was picking up after a bad start.

Ruffs Diamond

Declarer continued by ruffing a diamond, while East discarded a heart. South then led a heart, and West took the ace and led a heart for East to ruff.

This reduced East and South to four trumps each. East had J-10-7-4, and South had K-Q-9-8. No matter what East led, he could get only one trick, and South was sure to make his contract.

The moral of this little tale is that you must always think of who is to play the hand when you double. If declarer is a Leaping Lena whose play is often bad (when it isn't worse), go ahead and double with your six trumps. If declarer is a knowledgeable card player, pass quietly and hope that he will commit himself to a losing line of play before he discovers your trump length.

nephew, Gilbert Gibson. Gibson telephoned from a tavern at U. S. 45 and County Trunk G.

He told authorities he found Arthur, his clothing still ablaze, lying on the ground near his car, when he (Gibson) drove into the driveway. The victim's brother, Walter, was nearby, bleeding from the face and hands, crying and in a state of shock, Gibson said.

The nephew said he covered Arthur with a blanket, then went to call authorities. When police arrived, they found Walter, dazed, sitting inside the car.

Winnebago County Coroner Arthur C. Miller said fire started after the two brothers returned to their town of Vinland home on County Trunk G sometime between 11:30 p.m. and midnight after visiting a nearby tavern.

Went to Tavern They had gone to the tavern earlier in the evening to get some cigarettes and beer, Miller said.

Miller said Walter told him this morning that Arthur was lighting a cigarette in the car and either the cigarette or match dropped into Arthur's lap. It ignited his clothing, Walter said.

The victim's brother said he tried vainly to beat out the flames with his hands. He was treated at Theda Clark Hospital for burns on his hands and face.

Funeral Services Christian was born Aug. 13, 1905, in the town of Vinland, and operated a farm up to the time of his death. He is survived by three brothers and one sister.

Funeral services will be at 2 p.m. Monday at the Kessler Funeral Home, Neenah, with Rev. Jack Van Liew, pastor of Allenville Community Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in Allenville Cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home after 2 p.m. Sunday.

stones and ink bottles against the building, breaking windows and defacing the walls.

The United States protested and demanded more adequate police protection.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko promised to provide "supplementary measures" for guarding the building.

Soviet promises to provide more effective protection in the event of future demonstrations has created an impression here that the Kremlin does not want U.S.-Soviet relations to get out of hand.

However, if the Vietnamese war goes on with increasing military activity on both sides, Russia and the United States will be drawn progressively into more antagonistic positions; and possibility of making any progress toward better East-West relations, foreseen as recently as the beginning of the year, will be lost indefinitely.

Mother of 4, Pregnant, Is Found Guilty led her away. Jurors stared after her, their faces stony.

It was the climax to a two-month trial in which jurors heard of Mrs. Miller's personality and of the violent death of the quiet dentist friends called "Cork."

The state's case: Mrs. Miller left Dr. Miller to "throw herself" at wealthy, dapper attorney Arthur C. Hayton, dated him at motels until the affair cooled and he rebuffed her, then returned to her husband — but only to plot his death to collect his $140,000 double-indemnity life insurance.

She drugged him with sleeping pills, then soaked their Volkswagen in gasoline and set it afire.

The defense contended: Mrs. Miller's "foolish little heart" led her to an unfortunate affair with Hayton, but she realized her mistake, reconciled with her husband, and hoped their fourth child would start their life anew. Dr. Miller, given to taking sleeping pills, couldn't be roused when an accident caused the car to swerve and catch fire, and Mrs. Miller was singing in a vain try to get him from the passenger's seat.

Hayton's own wife died, under circumstances still under investigation, after Mrs. Miller and Hayton had started seeing one another.

Hayton, 41, testified to his trysts with the slim, blue-eyed Mrs. Miller, but told the court emphatically: "I never loved Lucille."

He was not in court when the verdict was delivered.

Cab Drivers See Shocking Things Daily, Ann Relates

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband goes to school during the day and drives a cab at night. He is very ambitious and I'm proud of him. We don't have many evenings out because he can't spare the time and we must save every penny. But I'm not complaining about that. I'm wondering if I should insist that he find another job.

My husband says almost every night he is propositioned by a woman passenger. Most of them are half stiff and lone-shocking aspects of driving a hack.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My son is a paper boy. He gets up at 4:30 every morning so he can start his route. His route is completed by 6:15 a.m.

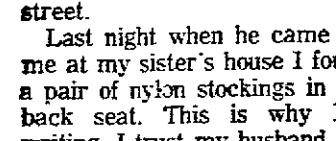

If this sounds difficult let me assure you it is easy compared with another part of the job — collecting the money.

The boy has to start his collecting on Thursday to get the money to the office by Saturday. Often he is still trying to collect on Monday. Some people ask him to come back three or four times for as little as a quarter.

Millions of people read your column, Ann. Will you please print this letter as a service to thousands of good kids who work awfully hard to make a few dollars? Thank you very much. — An Observer

Dear Observer: Every week I receive a handful of letters expressing this kind of complaint. I have printed several letters on the subject and I will continue to print them (hopefully). C'mon folks, be on time.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here is the situation and we need your advice: My wife had a serious operation and is recuperating nicely. The doctor suggested she spend a couple of weeks in a warm climate. She wants to go to California to visit her sister but she insists that

Last night when he came for me at my sister's house I found a pair of nylon stockings in the back seat. This is why I'm writing. I trust my husband but how long will he be able to resist temptation? Should I make him quit? — Alice

Dear Alice: No. Your husband is the one who must decide what kind of work he wants to do. You should help him by demonstrating confidence in his judgment. Your husband would meet lonely women no matter what he did for a living, simply because the world is full of them.

As for nylons, they probably had runs, which is why they were removed. (Not ladylike, perhaps, but it happens every day.) Any cab driver will tell you this is one of the less

High Budgets and Student Fees

Again in Madison the issue of fees charged against students at the tax-supported state institutions of higher learning has entered political debate. The generous budget recommended to the legislature by Gov. Knowles for the University of Wisconsin and its branches and the schools in the state university system provides for a slight increase in student fee assessments, as well as a heavily increased levy upon the general taxpaying population.

The governor's fee proposal is relatively modest and is intended only to maintain the traditional sharing of higher education costs as between the immediate beneficiary and the community as a whole.

That ratio has been about 20 per cent of the cost of the instruction in student fees spread over the student body as a whole, and about 80 per cent in the form of state tax contributions.

There are some legislators who feel that it will be difficult to levy the huge increase in taxes which the total state budget will require and that some reduction in the tax deficit should be arranged through a somewhat higher fee schedule than the governor has proposed. Sen. Walter Hollander of Rosendale, chairman of the legislative finance committee, is one of the influential representatives of that view.

Predictably, leading Democrats are attacking the idea of increasing student fees, obviously believing that they have presented here an issue that can be exploited profitably.

They are no doubt right. For many students or their families any significant increase in the direct cost of education to themselves will be hardship. Some of their protests, we must suppose, have also been encouraged by the unrealistic public declarations of some officials, including some of the regents of the institutions involved, that they want the elimination of fee charges and absolutely free education for young people enrolling at the state universities.

These are attractive theoretical propositions. But there is no slightest chance that they will ever be seriously entertained by the elected officials who must answer to their constituents. We may well wonder, in fact, whether these regents would keep their positions if they were elective and they had the power to levy the taxes they are endorsing.

Our institutions of higher learning in Wisconsin have not only grown enormously in physical dimensions, but they have steadily improved in quality, in the competence of their faculties, the breadth of their course offerings, and the richness of their laboratory, library and other auxiliary facilities.

The general public including hundreds of thousands of persons who enjoy no immediate benefits from these high expenditures has steadily increased its tax contributions for such growth in quantity and quality of service. We believe it is fair to ask the person receiving the most direct benefits to share in a modest way these increased costs. The hardships upon the less affluent, it is pertinent to note, have been anticipated by the legislature in the establishment a few years ago of what is beyond much question the most generous student loan program of any state in this country.

Correction

Postmaster Francis Sumnicht of Appleton has pointed out an error in the editorial published by The Post-Crescent Thursday regarding mail covers. He explained that it is absolutely forbidden for any employee of the Postoffice Department to open any piece of mail.

When a mail cover is ordered from Washington on any particular person the postmaster concerned personally handles the matter. He keeps a record of all mail

T'ain't So

Most Americans, glancing back occasionally and often wistfully at those early days of the Republic, are apt to assume that the leaders in those world-shaking events were deep in agreement not only on principle but methods. There was the Aaron Burr episode of course, which makes the various alleged left and right wing plots to take over the nation today mere child's play. But in general the big names must have been men too big for petty disagreements, we like to think.

But it wasn't that way at all. A reading of some parts of our early history must make us wonder how the nation thrived or even survived.

In a new book titled Number 7: Alexander Hamilton's Secret Attempts to Control American Foreign Policy, Julian Boyd probes further into a major feud, that of Hamilton and Thomas Jefferson. Boyd appears to be a strong Jefferson supporter—even today historians take sides—and his conclusions may be somewhat overplayed. But the facts in his story reveal that the lines of authority in the infant nation were very confused and there was as much behind-the-scenes finagling as there is today.

Hamilton was Secretary of the Treasury in President Washington's Cabinet and Jefferson was Secretary of State. As today, an aspect of foreign policy in dispute was the United States tariff on imports. But there was little clear-cut determination of who was to set the tariff policy. And it was much more important than now.

Despite our break with Great Britain in the American Revolution, once the war was over some 90 per cent of our imports came from England or other British colonies just as they did when the American colonies were a part of the maritime empire. There was no income tax and no general sales tax. The major expenses of the federal government were met through tariffs levied on imports and the need for money was the primary purpose of such tariffs. Hamilton certainly realized the importance of the tariffs in protecting the new industries in the United States but this was not the original reason they were levied.

But while England was selling the United States a lot of things, its navy was still seizing American ships, impressing seamen it claimed were British and sometimes a lot of others as well and in general acting as if the Atlantic were England's private pond. Jefferson was protesting such actions and eventually of course the War of 1812 was fought in part because of the continued harassment.

Hamilton, however, according to Boyd, had a friend in the British intelligence. He kept assuring the agent that the United States would not retaliate for the violations of our shipping rights. Hamilton feared that England would cut off trade with the United States, a situation that would seriously reduce goods needed in industry and the revenue of tariffs on which the government subsisted.

Perhaps the British might have reconsidered their high-handedness on the high seas had they not been getting backdoor reports from Hamilton's friend. Or they might have become more belligerent at a time when they were stronger than they turned out to be when faced with a variety of enemies some twenty years later. We didn't win that War of 1812. It should be remembered: we profited by it.

The controversy over the respective merits of Jefferson and Hamilton will continue to rage. The real jealousies and strivings for power in early American history make even the bickerings of the Republicans and purges of the Democrats today seem mild taps on the wrist in comparison.

Balance of Payments Deficit

Encourage Americans Not to Travel Abroad

BY RICHARD F. NEWCOMB

AP Newsfeatures Writer

It's official now: the government would rather you "See America First", especially this year.

There's a little matter of helping to solve the balance of payments deficit. Last year more than 8 million Americans traveled abroad and spent $2 billion more than foreign tourists spent here.

"Look homeward, Americans," says Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall. Not only is America loaded with history, but seeing some of it will give you a "better grasp of the real meaning of Trafalgar Square and the Arc de Triomphe."

"When it comes to the search for history, we have our own castles, kingly places and even ancient cathedrals," Mr. Udall declares. "Our Spanish missions and Indian villages also have an antiquity transcending Europe's. As for festivals, Pablo Casals' Puerto Rican festival takes no back seat to Salzburg or Bayreuth, nor does the Tyrone Guthrie festival in Minneapolis."

On the subject of festivals, the United States is loaded with them, scattered across the map on all dates, places and subjects—plenty for all palates.

If you like German beer and bands, why not try the Maifest in mid-May in Hermann, Mo. It's been going on for over a hundred years. Or the Svensk Hullnings Fest (Swedish Pioneer Festival) at Lindsborg, Kans., in October.

The kids want to see pirates? Try the Gasparilla Festival at Tampa, Fla., which recalls the capture of the city by Pirate Jose Gaspar.

Indians? You can have them all the way from the Narragansett Indian Pow-wow at Charlestown, R. I., in August, to the Smoki Ceremonials and Pageant in Arizona, which winds up with Indian live snake dances and prayers for rain.

Wild Bill Hickok rides again at the "Days of '76" festival in Deadwood, S. D., along with Calamity Jane and Custer. And all of the best ride at the Pendleton Roundup in Oregon, one of the nation's oldest and biggest rodeos.

Ticking off just a few of the hundreds of festivals, waiting to pick up the dollars you might have dropped in Europe or Patagonia:

Corn Festival
Corn Festival at Mitchell, S. D.—Corn, bands and carnivals.

Hog Barbecue at Kewanee, Ill.—pork and polkas.
Cotton Carnival at Memphis—cotton and cuties.

Oktober Fest at LaCrosse, Wis.—Bavarian bands and beer.

Wilhelm Tell Festival at New Glarus, Wis.—Schiller's play in German or English, put on by Swiss.

Syttende Mai in Stoughton, Wis.—Smorgasbord and folk dancing.

Indian Exposition at Anadarko, Okla.—Indians, teepees, bows and arrows.

Fisherman's Fiesta at San Pedro, Calif.—Dancing, boat parades and fish, fish, fish.

Nisei Week in Los Angeles—flower and tea ceremonies, judo and karate in Little Tokyo.

Tulip Festival in Holland, Mich. (where else?) in mid-May.

Basque Festival at Winnemucca, Nev.—famed shepherds in native costumes, dancing, wine-drinking.

Rattlesnake Hunt at Sweetwater, Tex.—Four tons of snakes last year, with prizes for weight and length.

Not to mention the Cherry Blossom Festival in Washington, the Pilgrims at Plymouth. This year you can go all the way to the Alpha Week festival in Hawaii and still be patriotic.

As Mr. Udall said: "Look homeward, Americans."

LaFollette Name Back In Politics

From Anderson, S. C., Independent

The name "LaFollette" has proven again to be politically potent in Wisconsin.

For half a century beginning about 1890 the name had become a legendary base for the family's state and national power.

Latest to come into office is Bronson Cutting LaFollette. He became Wisconsin state attorney general at the age of 28.

He is the grandson of the late Senator Robert M. (Fighting Bob) LaFollette.

"Fighting Bob" entered the House at the age of 30. Wisconsin elected him governor on a reform ticket. He then was elected to the U. S. Senate, and remained there until his death in 1925. He ran for President on the Progressive Party ticket in 1924.

When "Old Bob" died, his son "Young Bob" was elected to the U. S. Senate. Another son, Phillip, was elected governor of Wisconsin.

Bronson, the newcomer to office, is the son of "Young Bob" but he most definitely has a mind of his own.

Bronson is the first of the LaFollettes to break with family tradition. They were nominally Republicans. Bronson ran and was elected as a Democrat.

The nation might well keep an eye on Bronson LaFollette. After a quarter of a century wandering in and out of the far-right-wing desert, Wisconsin may be in a mood to express once again the people-oriented progressivism of old "Fighting Bob."

firm legality-backed-by-force Americans have in their own legal system. It can only serve as an arena of negotiation, a place to repair to when a crisis threatens to get out of hand.

Yet it must survive because something like the United Nations is needed and there is nothing else in the world like it. And because the UN is a place of negotiation and not of legislation, it is sometimes forced to negotiate for its own survival. If the Soviet Union is willing to pay its back dues through the fiction of calling them "general contributions," it should be allowed to proceed. The important thing is getting the money—no matter how—and putting the United Nations back in business.

Knowles Inherited Most Of His Budget Problems

Editor, Post-Crescent:

The Governor's thought that we should give attention to vocational education as well as higher education, is the best thought that has come out of Madison for some time. His long experience in life no doubt has taught him that many of our high school dropouts are good timber, but not fitted for four years of college training, and if trained for occupations they are fitted for, can serve their country, as well as those holding master and doctor degrees. He has the foresight to see that our youth should be taught the dignity of labor, and that regardless of whatever path in life they follow, it's an honor to be a leader.

The chief executive is being condemned for asking for more money to meet our tax burden for the next two years, and why? He is not the father of all the children that are going to start school this fall. Neither is he the governor that signed the bill last year that gave the state employed personnel a raise in pay, as for himself, $5,000, to be paid for with taxpayers' money.

It appears that Governor Knowles is not seeking political power for himself or his party, but doing the very best he knows how to pay the bills that have already been created, and anticipated during the next two years, while at the same time keeping our tax burden at a minimum.

Wisconsin Report

Business Community A Partner to Knowles In State's Objectives

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON—To a degree approached by none of his predecessors, Gov. Knowles is determined to enroll the business community of Wisconsin as partner in the main objectives of his administration.

Wyngaard

Fully aware that the Democrats will counter with conflict of interest accusations and charges of "big business" control of the affairs of state, the governor has thus far announced "task forces," in the curiously bureaucratic language of the times, that echo like roll calls for the chief leaders of the corporate enterprises of Wisconsin.

Perhaps the most plausible of these advisory and consultative groups is his so-called Board for Economic Development, which will be the chief instrument for the nationwide promotion campaign on behalf of Wisconsin as an advantageous domicile for business and industry which he intends will be the dominant theme of his administration.

Even the most suspicious critics can scarcely refute the idea that the most effective "salesmen" for Wisconsin among the industrial leaders of the nation and the world will be those men who have been the responsible and successful directors of corporations in a Wisconsin environment.

EFFICIENCY STUDY

But perhaps somewhat less plausible is another "task force" of business leaders assigned to study the expenditure efficiency of the state services. Without even remotely intending to disparage the good will or the public spirit or the managerial distinction of these men, one may ask whether what they know about running a business is necessarily or probably related to the unique business of operating a university, or running a welfare institution, or even a state administrative agency.

The governor explained that he is searching for a formula for a steady and "reasonable" pattern of financial expenditure without "recurring crises." Yet it seems unlikely that he can achieve that happy condition without involving himself in basic and difficult policy decisions. It cannot be achieved through perfecting day-to-day business operations, however desirable improvements there may be and whatever opportunities for improvements may be found.

The skyrocketing cost of the state budget is not in chairs and desks or even in the "bureaucrats" who occupy them. It is in huge disbursements to local governments and enormously increasing costs for services to people—as in the colleges and universities. Those disbursements can be reduced, if there is a will to reduce them. But there is no one who knows how, or at least, who wants to act if he knows how.

OTHER GAINS

There is a temptation to speculate that the governor has other purposes and benefits in mind, including the introduction of some of the most influential members of the Wisconsin business and taxpaying community to the harshly difficult role of the tax budgets.

One of the ironies of contemporary politics is the election of a Republican governor on an economy platform in a time when he cannot control expenditures. Grumbling in political circles about the Knowles' budget is too audible for anybody to miss. Some Democrats cannot resist the temptation to assume in sardonic response the posture of economy champions and friends of the taxpayer.

The "blue ribbon" expenditure auditing group may very well serve as a kind of political buffer, in the same way that a Democratic governor a few years ago devised another distinguished commission to relieve him of the onus of introducing the sales tax.

If there are gains in the way of constructive managerial improvements, or plausible reorganization of bureaus and institutions, they will be counted as bonus. The Knowles problem is to persuade the electorate that he is not a profligate, and that he is in fact dedicated to the most efficient use of every tax dollar.

Oscar Still Popularity Contest to George Scott

Actor Who Shook Up Movie Academy
Few Years Ago Hasn't Changed Opinions

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The actor who shook up the Motion Picture Academy is in town at the awards season, and he remains unconcerned where the Oscar is concerned.

Dynamic George C. Scott paid a rare visit to Hollywood to perform in a Bob Hope-Chrysler Theater show. Several observers believed Scott would be nominated last week for his role as Gen. Buck Turgidson in "Dr. Strangelove."

Scott didn't think so, and it turned out he was right.

"I don't believe I will ever be nominated again," he said flatly. He thinks Academy voters still resent his blast three years ago, when he was nominated as best supporting actor for "The Hustler." He asked that his name be withdrawn on grounds that the Oscar race was a meaningless popularity contest.

Does he regret his action? "Not in the least," he snapped. "My only regret is that I wasn't able to shock the Academy into doing something constructive to clean up the awards structure. The same orgy of trade paper advertisements goes on."

"And the awards are still vot-

Jean Arthur Appears in 'Gunsmoke'

BY TV SCOUT

9-10 (Channel 2) — Jean Arthur ends an 11-year-retirement to make her television debut on Gunsmoke. The spunky lady of the films in the 1940's shows up as a spunky grandmother, a hard-drinking ex-saloon gal and old friend of Kitty's (Amanda Blake) who is determined to see that her careless son (Scott Marlowe) mends his ways.

4-5:30 (Channel 11) — Wide World of Sports has film glimpses of a trio of high-flying events: the top American ski jumping, the national championships from Berlin, N.H., the free dance competition of the world figure skating championships from Colorado Springs, Colo., and the Daytona Continental Sports Car Race.

6:30-7 (Channel 4-5) — McCoy's Floating Zoo floats in for another episode on Flipper. The second of a three-part story concerns the happy dolphin and his pals trying to head off Sean McCoy's (Pat Henning) debts so he can keep his baby elephant and hippo.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 11) — A day in the life of The King Family reveals the singing troupe of kinkfolk living in a lush two-story mansion singing a variety of fireside songs. The set is papier mache, but the tunes are solid.

6:30-7:30 (Channel 2) — The Jackie Gleason Show has a bundle of routine humor: Jackie discussing the days when he was a kid, dressing up in an old-fashioned night shirt and reciting the ancient poem, "The Spider and the Fly."

7:30-10 (Channel 4-5) — "Batleground." Dore Schary's vivid but too often mundane war drama, is the Saturday Night at the Movies offering.

8-9 (Channel 2) — Ed Wynn makes his third visit to The Entertainers, and again the veteran comic is in high form. He is especially nimble portraying a befuddled fairy godmother to Carol Burnett in a wild sketch, "Cinderella Revisited."

8:30-9:30 (Channel 11) — Eddie Fisher, in his first TV appearance of the season, is the singing host of The Hollywood Palace. His guests are Connie Stevens, comedian Jack Carter, Arrang, the Korean national ballet company; the Marquis Chimps; Kuban Cossacks, a European dance trio; and comic pantomimist Ben Wrigley.

$405 Million In Gold Sold to France in '64

U. S. Meanwhile Buys Metal From Great Britain, Italy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States sold $405 million worth of gold to France last year while purchasing $617.7 million from Great Britain and $200 million from Italy.

The figures were shown today in the Treasury's quarterly report on gold transactions with foreign countries.

Authorities previously had announced that the U.S. gold stock declined by $125 million last year.

An additional $600 million is believed to have been sold this year, although figures are not available. The United States now has $14.8 billion in monetary gold plus an unspecified amount in a fund used for trading.

France converted some $180 million worth of its dollars to gold in January and reportedly plans to convert a similar amount soon.

The Treasury report showed that France converted $101.3 million worth of dollars to gold in each of the four quarters in 1964.

Other large sales in the last three months of 1964 included: Netherlands $60 million, Switzerland $51 million, Belgium $40.1 million, Spain $30 million, Turkey $12.5 million, Lebanon $12.5 million.

In that period, the United States bought $125 million worth of gold from Great Britain, $28.2 million from Brazil and $9.9 million from the Philippines.

For the year, the United States had net foreign sales of gold amounting to $36.2 million. The remainder of the $125 million loss was in domestic sales for industrial, professional and artistic uses.

Network Ownership Of Programs Topic

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission will discuss publicly a possible limitation on network ownership of television programs at its March 15 meeting.

The matter was to have come up Friday, but the session was shelved so the commission could continue work in another field. Television networks now control about 90 per cent of the programs presented during the prime evening hours.

An FCC spokesman said a rule to limit this to 50 per cent has been discussed.

O. P. Deuel, director of the rates and research division, confirmed that the PSC would not get involved in the Menasha Electric Utility controversy without a formal hearing and that a formal hearing could not be held without the city first

Short Time Lag in Rate Reduction

MADISON — The time between the application for reduction of rates and the granting of the rate reduction last November for the Menasha Electric Utility was very short, O. P. Deuel, director of the Public Service Commission's rates and research division, told Menasha city officials Friday.

Deuel confirmed that the formal request came after the first proposals were made for sale of the utility to Wisconsin Michigan Power Co. However, he said rate adjustment plans had been in the talking stage for some time.

He also agreed with City Clerk Harry Kind that the formula used for computing the tax equivalent payment from a utility had been on the books for about 10 years and that many communities used a similar plan before that. A lesser rate could be charged, he added.

The Menasha utility has now agreed to pay the full rate allowed after having paid 60 percent of the full rate for a number of years.

Deuel also said the bond situation with the utility was not a problem for the PSC. The utility currently has about $2 million in outstanding bonds and provisions would have to be made to pay these off if the utility were to be sold. This, Deuel said, was a local problem.

Building Pace Hits Decade Low Mark

Appleton's $91,000 in February Is Slowest Month on Record

New construction moved at a snail's pace in Appleton during February with projects totaling only $91,992.

It was the slowest month on record for more than a decade, and can be attributed to several factors. Building Inspector Charles Magnette said today.

He explained that: — Builders made a big push last fall and have a heavy backlog of projects to complete.

— There is heavy frost in the ground, ranging from five to seven feet in various parts of the city.

— The usual pre-spring new construction spurt, as a result, will be later this year.

Record in 1964

In 1964 Appleton registered an all-time high in new construction, passing the $15 million mark.

Big things also were predicted for 1965 but nothing of major significance has materialized yet. January building totaled $297,140.

New construction for the first two months of the year now totals $389,132 — about a half million dollars less than the $871,812 for the corresponding period in 1964.

"The deep frost is probably the most important factor in d lering new building starts now," Magnette said.

"We had some pretty good cold weather this winter without a snow covering so the ground is plenty hard," he added.

Roads and Financing Are Subjects of Two Hearings in Assembly

MADISON (AP)—The Assembly Highways Committee has been told that if it wants to build a highway from Milwaukee to south-central Wisconsin to "find a way to do it."

"If we're so concerned about building a road, let's talk about financing it," Assemblyman Lewis Mittness, D-Janesville, said Thursday at public hearings on two proposals dealing with the issue.

"We need money now if we plan to accelerate work on a highway, but I haven't heard anyone talking about money," he said. "If we want to build it, let's find a way to do it."

Mittness pointed out that the proposals being considered are "joint resolutions having as much effect as standing on the top of the Capitol and shouting."

Mittness' resolution asks the State Highway Commission to conduct a study to determine if a new Janesville-Milwaukee route would be better than modernizing Highway 15 from Milwaukee to Beloit. He said a study made in 1959 did not consider any alternative to Highway 15.

GOP Senators Buck Pay Hike For Lucey Aide

David Adamany Topic of Feuding By Legislators

MADISON — The Republican majority of the Wisconsin state senate is resisting a bill designed to provide a substantial salary boost for a young Green Bay politician chosen two months ago as aide to Lt. Gov. Patrick J. Lucey, Democrat.

Adamany now receives $614 a month as a legislative schedule employee. The new bill sponsored by Lucey would authorize the state department of administration to establish a suitable salary scale. Senators said a figure of $800 a month would be likely.

Skylight Theater Group

'Pirates of Penzance' Performed Brilliantly by Touring Company

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Despite a late arrival after a trouble-filled trip from Milwaukee and an audience of a size bordering on parody, the Sky-light Theater's touring company of "The Pirates of Penzance" opened its first state tour with a brilliant performance at Madison Junior High School Friday night. The company's stay in the city was completed this afternoon and it moved on to the Fine Arts Auditorium of St. Norbert College for a performance at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

The multitude who deprived itself of the charms, color, skill and wit of the company last night would be well advised that a trip to DePere tonight would not be wasted.

The principals of this most witty of Gilbert and Sullivan's creations were uniformly excellent, each melding his special style smoothly into the unifying melange that marks G. and S.'s multi-faceted spoof.

Lasting Impression

Without a doubt, however, the incredible basso and unbelievable golden throated Donna Curtis as Mabel, who substituted for Pat Zapi, who suddenly became ill. Refreshments will be served by mothers of kindergarten children with Mrs. Jon Blumreich as chairman.

Comic Fancy

The wonderful comic face and style of Joyce Henry as the pirate maid of all work is equally incomparable as was the proud precision and fanciful freshness of Leon Petrus' major general with his superb patter performances and the insatiable inauspicious of Pirate King Greg Gorak.

Let it be granted that mention of all of them in anything but the same breath is injustice to each, but the real strength of the performance came in the superb ensemble work resulting from the genius of Stage Director Tom Brennen, in the delightful balance growing out of Petrus' music direction and the gay brilliance of Mrs. Ralph Paradowski's colorfully fanciful costumes. Needless to say that all of this would be bootless if it weren't for the fine group of young singers Producer Clair Richardson has collected and the yeoman service of pianist Nancy Lindeen as accompanist.

Steady Step

With "The Pirates" filled with Gilbert and Sullivan's burlesque of overblown lyrics, music, style and book, the production offers the dreadful pitfall of questionable taste and tiresome frolic to any company that misjudges its step. Consequently the steady tread of the Skylight company is as commendable as its delightful product.

It is said the Skylight has been thinking of making its tour an annual one with the great possibility of bringing Gilbert and Sullivan's "Iolanthe" out of Milwaukee in 1966. It is sincerely hoped that Friday's sparse response doesn't move the company to drop the Fox Cities from its itinerary. As rich as Drucks, 26, 724 Milwaukee St., the Fox Cities are in cultural attractions, their deprivation would be felt if the Skylight fails to come this way again.

Need Boat for Rescue Work Plan Hearing for New Village Map

See Increased Lake Activities With Building of Marina

OSHKOSH — The need for a boat for rescue work on Winnebago County lakes and for patrolling the lakes and rivers during busy seasons was presented to the Sheriff and Coroner Committee Friday afternoon by Sheriff Marvin R. Peppier.

He advised the committee that the sheriff is responsible for the rescue work on the county lakes and for any dragging operations in case of drowning. The county should have an adequate boat and equipment for such operations. Sheriff Peppier pointed out the opening this summer of the Pioneer Hotel and Marina, which will have room for 250 boats, will greatly increase the boating activities on Lake Winnebago and the other lakes and rivers in the county.

The committee asked the sheriff and Chief Deputy Charles Lowry to prepare a list of equipment needed for such work in case a boat should be provided.

The committee also announced the hiring of Ronald Rasmussen, 24, 314 E. Irving Ave., Oshkosh, as a new member of the county police department. He will receive training at the radio desk before being assigned to patrolling duties. Rasmussen is married and has four children. He had been employed since 1963 in the county highway department.

Citizens to Air Views Before Combined Locks Planning Unit

COMBINED LOCKS — There is no access from a street or highway as shown on the official map. Public sewers, street utilities and improvements may not be constructed in any street or highway unless the street or highway is recorded on the official map.

The official map shows present and future streets, park locations and their extensions beyond municipal limits. Planning is particularly important as streets are the most permanent element in the physical makeup of a community and alterations are costly, noted Donald Hoh, village president. The village board may establish an official map by ordinance or resolution. The map shows locations and width of streets, highways and parkways and the location and extent of parks and playgrounds even though such streets and parks have not actually been laid out.

Map Filed

After the map is adopted, it is filed in the register of deeds office. It thus becomes an official record and alerts property buyers to where future streets and parks will be located. In establishing future limits on the map beyond the limits of the municipality into town areas, street lines may be extended one and one-half miles beyond the village limit.

The official map is enforced through a building permit system. Generally no permit is issued for a building which would lie in the bed of any street, highway or parkway shown on the map. Anyone who constructs a building in the bed of a mapped street or highway will not be compensated for the building when the street or highway is constructed.

Building permits are not issued for a structure for which

Knowles Asks 'Firm' Commitment

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Gov. Warren P. Knowles has demanded that the Wisconsin Exposition Board make its own "firm" recommendations on the continuation of State Fair Park at Milwaukee or the abandonment of that site in favor of a better location elsewhere.

With other members of the state building commission, the governor rejected the request of the state exposition board for money to hire another survey of the feasibility of the present location in West Allis for the long range purposes of the exposition board.

The board asked for $10,000 to hire consultants for the purpose. Several years ago it spent $17,500 for a similar survey, which exposition board members said did not provide sufficient detail to make a reliable judgment.

Earlier Study

The earlier study concluded that to remove the state fair and associated activities to a new exposition site would probably cost from $15 million to $20 million, officials said. The 1963 legislature authorized the formation of a building corporation to arrange financing for such an enterprise, but no action has yet been taken.

Knowles declared that another study is not needed, and suggested that the exposition board members return within 60 days with their own analysis and an explicit proposal on their own authority.

Herbert Velzer and other members of the board protested to the governor that they are not "indecisive," but that they want to use the utmost care in making a decision "that is best for the state."

Water Commission Disagree on Contract

A wage dispute between the Appleton Water Commission and a union representing 10 of its employees appears headed for factfinding under the Wisconsin Employment Relations Board (WERB).

Morris Slaveny, chairman of the WERB, sent a letter to the commission Friday, advising it that the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, petitioned for factfinding on Feb. 16.

The commission and union has been at an impasse regarding the wage issue in a 1963 contract.

35-Cent Increase

A union request for a 35-cent an hour increase, according to the commission, is the crux of the disagreement.

Slaveny said the WERB would conduct an informal investigation into the state of negotiations rather than official hearing to determine whether conditions exist for factfinding.

The case has been assigned to Donald Lee of the WERB staff, who handled last year's dispute, and got the parties to arrive at agreement on a 1964 contract.
